

Haverford Dial-Up Networking Phone Numbers

In the event that a modem in the modem pool is malfunctioning, it will sometimes help to call a different number (otherwise, you do not need to change the phone number from the default). That is, the Haverford modem lines are arranged in a circular fashion, so that if one is busy, your call will jump to the next one on the list. After the last one, your call jumps back to the first one. If a malfunctioning modem answers, it will be difficult to get past it unless someone else is temporarily tying up the bad line. So if you receive an error (this won't work if all the lines are really busy), you can call one of the other lines toward the middle or end of the modem pool. Here are some of the other phone numbers, if you want to try them:

610-896-4933 (this should be your default dialing number)

610-795-5414

610-795-5418

If you have problems connecting to the default dialing number, please notify Academic Computing so that the situation can be addressed.
