The Strongest General Election Candidate

Fetterman doesn’t look like a typical politician, and more importantly, he doesn’t act like one. His straight-talking, no BS style appeals across party lines and resonates with swing voters in the reddest counties.

“The kind of anti-politician a Democratic wizard might conjure to grab the dispossessed Americans who tipped the 2016 election to President Trump.”

_The Washington Post_

“He’s not your standard politician. And that’s helped him sell progressive politics to working-class voters”

_The New York Times_

As the chair of Pennsylvania’s Board of Pardons, John has led the fight to give second chances to non-violent longtime inmates and free those who have been wrongfully convicted. Under John’s tenure, the Board has recommended more applicants for commutation than under any lieutenant governor in decades.

ECONOMIC EQUALITY AND CRIMINAL JUSTICE REFORM

- CNN has consistently rated Pennsylvania’s US Senate seat the likeliest in the country to flip to the Democrats
- The first time in 42 years PA has an open US Senate seat
- John is the only candidate on either side of the aisle who has won statewide

JOHN IS LIKELY TO BE THE DEMOCRATIC NOMINEE.
WHY JOHN

A Pennsylvania native, John was born to teenage parents in York just starting out on their own. As a young man, John joined AmeriCorps and served in Pittsburgh’s historic Hill District, where he helped set up the first computer labs in the neighborhood and taught GED classes to young mothers and fathers. He went on to earn a Master’s in Public Policy from Harvard University’s Kennedy School of Government. John started a GED program in the town of Braddock, one of the poorest and most challenged communities in Pennsylvania. In 2005, encouraged by his students, John ran for mayor and managed to win by a single vote. In his 13 years as mayor, John worked to rebuild his community, creating jobs, getting youth engaged, and bringing creative urban policy solutions to Braddock. First as mayor and now as Lieutenant Governor, John has been on the forefront of progress, pushing for marijuana legalization before it was popular, officiating a same-sex marriage before it was legal, and advocating for single payer health care long before it was mainstream.
John and Gisele didn't settle in the Lt. Governor's Mansion, instead opening up the pool in the official residence to children who typically wouldn't have access to one. They live with their three children—Karl, 12, Gracie, 9, and August, 7—in a renovated car dealership in Braddock with the family dog, Levi. Gisele is a trailblazer in her own right. Gisele's mother took her and her younger brother to the U.S. when she was seven, all of them undocumented immigrants from Brazil. They lived in a one-room apartment while her mother worked cleaning hotels. After 15 years of living in the shadows, Gisele received her green card in 2004 and became a U.S. citizen in 2009. Today she runs numerous nonprofits and a business incubator for female entrepreneurs.
